

Los Pinos Ranch 2026 Newsletter

Greetings from Los Pinos Ranch,

While attempting to dream up a new way to compose this year's message to our guests, I asked one who had been a visitor over the years for some help. More than just offering a few suggestions, we were presented with the following depiction of Los Pinos from a guest's perspective.

Maybe we won't call this a Newsletter, after all. Because a lot of what's what at Los Pinos is Old News. Like the squeaky gate by the road, the ancient side-saddle on the porch, that dusty Old Glory hanging from the rafters in the Lodge.

You want New News? Crooning cowhands, chuck-wagon cook-outs? Not on your life. Los Pinos was then, is now, and we hope, ever shall be the real thing. Alice's home-baked bread, companionable fires in the great stone fireplace, Navajo rugs from a while back, four simple chinked-log cabins with quilted bedsteads that have made guests feel at home for over a century.

There's been a True West welcome here for a long, long time. Trails into the Pecos. Hikes and horses. Pine trees, green meadows, the river, rugged mountains, clean air, and the silence of a world away. It's Alice and Bill's place and, lucky for us, our place too.

And, nowadays, with the changing West and the runaway world, this is a rare thing: tradition and quietness and Los Pinos. Come visit.

What a gift!

Los Pinos wouldn't be what it is today without the many guests and visitors who have become our friends over the years. As we prepare for the upcoming summer season, we look forward to hearing from you and welcoming you back to Los Pinos Ranch "where the road ends and the trails begin."

Wishing you all the best,

Bill and Alice McSweeney
